Eurocities was founded in 1986 by the mayors of six large European cities. Its members are the elected local and municipal governments of major European cities. Today, Eurocities brings together the local governments of over 200 European cities, that between them govern 135 million citizens across 38 countries.

The scale and urgency of the tasks ahead for cities and policy-makers could not be greater. From climate change to rising inequalities, unstable finances and the digital transformation: The actions and decisions of EU leaders over these coming five years will reverberate for decades to come. This makes the work of the Eurocities network more important than ever. After all, finding effective European solutions will only be possible by involving the actors at the heart of these challenges: Our cities.

Eurocities is the leading network for European cities. It influences and works with the EU institutions to respond to common issues that affect the day-to-day lives of Europeans.

Eurocities strives for a Europe where cities are genuine partners with the EU to create a better future where:

- 1. People take part in an inclusive society
- 2. People progress in a prosperous local economy
- 3. People move and live in a healthy environment
- 4. People make vibrant and open public spaces
- 5. City governments address global challenges
- 6. City governments are fit for the future

Eurocities does this through:

- Advocacy: Representing the voice of cities at EU level, to bring about change on the ground
- Insights: Monitoring and reporting back to cities the latest EU developments, funding opportunities and trends that affect them
- Best-practice sharing: Facilitating the exchange of knowledge, experience and good practices between cities to scale up urban solutions
- Training: Building capacity to tackle current and future urban challenges
The Secretary General leads the 60-person Secretariat based in Brussels, and is the voice of the network towards policy-makers and stakeholders in Brussels and across Europe. S/he reports to the Eurocities’ Executive Committee, which is led by 12 elected cities and their mayors.

Responsibilities

The Secretary General is expected to:

- Articulate and organise Eurocities activities to ensure that the network’s interests are well represented and advanced in all relevant policy domains
- Maintain a strong relationship with Eurocities’ members and the different communities within the network
- Oversee Executive Committee meetings and the annual General Assembly
- Develop programmes and initiatives that promote the Eurocities network and ensure that it is a trusted partner of regulators and is a source of ideas and information on cities for policy-makers and regional authorities
- Manage Eurocities Secretariat and staff and, together with the team, ensure successful delivery of the Strategic Framework and annual work programme
- Manage and oversee the Secretariat’s budget in consultation with Eurocities’ Executive Committee

External Representation

The Secretary General is the leading spokesperson of the Eurocities network and represents its members towards high-level policy-makers and other stakeholders in the community.

The Secretary General is responsible for developing and maintaining strong relationships with Eurocities’ members and other stakeholders such as European institutions, national and regional policy-makers, and other relevant interest groups for cities.

The Secretary General represents Eurocities in policy debates and discussions of strategic importance to cities where the mission of Eurocities is the focus.
